

The Wake Up Call

In the beginning of 2006, the movie "An Inconvenient Truth" had its premiere at the Sundance Festival. It marked the beginning of a year that made many people (including me) more aware of the effects of the global warming. Our planet is at stake and I urge you to watch this film. Sure, one could disagree with some of the facts and the somewhat holier-than-thou appearance of Al Gore, it's still important that someone addresses the issue in a way that makes people listen.

A couple of months ago, a 4-episode documentary was showed on swedish television called "The Planet". It again reminded me about what's happening and how we overconsume with bad results. The economies in China & India are growing rapidly and they are on their way to make some of the mistakes we in the western world did and still do. Who can blame them though... There are some 2,4 billion people living in China and India. In 2050 we will be about 9 billion people on earth.

Promises for 2007...

Buy tickets for the NIN show in april

Buy a violin and a piano (and learn to play, ha ha)

Snowboard vacation in March

Record solo album

Join Amnesty

Write S&M album with Snowy

Repair my Star Wars pinball machine

Complain about my in-ear monitors (bloody hate 'em)

Stop writing down promises I won't keep

HAPPY NEW 2007

Professor Muhammad Yunus

All hail to this man for coming up with new ideas to fight poverty all over the world.

Prof. Yunus and Grameen Bank were awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for 2006.

Homepage

www.grameenfoundation.org

	KRUX	THERION	LION'S SHARE
	The Krux show at Hard Rock on the 16th went great. The next show will be "Rock At Sea" on March 10th 2007.	The classic show in Bucharest was a bit crazy, but overall it went fine. Might be a dvd-release in 2007.	Recorded backing vox for Lion's Share this week. My good friend Ricky Evensand plays the drums.	